Communiqué The Anglican - Lutheran International Commission White Point, Nova Scotia, Canada, 14 to 20 May 2007

The Third Anglican-Lutheran International Commission (ALIC) held its second meeting at White Point, Nova Scotia, Canada between 14 and 20 May, 2007, under the chairmanship of the Rt Revd Fred Hiltz, Anglican Bishop of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and the Revd Dr Thomas Nyiwé, President of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Cameroon.

The Commission has been established by the Anglican Consultative Council and the Lutheran World Federation to continue the dialogue between Anglicans and Lutherans on the worldwide level which has been in progress since 1970. ALIC intends to build upon the work reflected in The Niagara Report (1987), focusing on the mission of the church and the role of the ordained ministry, The Diaconate as an Ecumenical Opportunity (1995), and most recently Growth in Communion (2002), the report of the Anglican-Lutheran International Working Group (ALIWG), which reviewed the extensive regional agreements which have established close relations between Anglican and Lutheran churches in several parts of the world.

The Commission first met in 2006 in Moshi, Tanzania where it set up working groups. At the White Point meeting the working groups continued their work and presented papers on a variety of topics, including the following: the status of Lutheran-Anglican relations in various regions of the world, the state of the question regarding the historic episcopate, emerging opportunities for joint mission and diaconal ministry, the state of interchangeability of ministries throughout the world, cooperation in theological education, a critical analysis of ecclesiology and the language of unity. The Commission also explored ways of developing these themes in its future work.

The Commission welcomed the Lutheran World Federation's recent Lund statement on "Episcopal Ministry within the Apostolicity of the Church". It views this statement as a useful reference point for its own ongoing discussions on the ministry of episcopé, and commends it for study in the context of Anglican-Lutheran dialogue.

The Commission also had extensive discussions on the proposed draft for "An Anglican Covenant" and offered a response from the perspective of the document's potential impact on ecumenical relations between the two communions. This response has been forwarded to the Covenant Design Group. The Commission encourages the Lutheran World Federation to respond to the Covenant draft.

As a result of its deliberations on the ministry of diakonia, the Commission plans to include in its future meetings a block of time devoted to strategies that will help our churches work more closely together in common witness to address issues such as HIV-AIDS and poverty.

The Commission took action to enable the All Africa Anglican-Lutheran Commission (AAALC) to move ahead with its mandate, and anticipates a report from the AAALC at its next meeting.

The meeting was hosted by the Anglican Communion in cooperation with Bishop Fred Hiltz. The Commission was welcomed by Bishop Raymond Schultz, National Bishop of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada, and received a greeting from the Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, Archbishop Andrew Hutchison. Commission members visited The Little Dutch Church, the oldest standing building of Lutheran origin in Canada and now associated with the Anglican parish of St. George in Halifax, as well as the Cathedral Church of All Saints of Halifax, and historic St. John's Church in Lunenburg, the centerpiece of the World Historic District of Old Town Lunenburg.

The Commission is planning to meet next year (2008) in Norway. We give thanks to God for the vocation of Anglicans and Lutherans to bear witness to the love of God revealed in Christ in their common service to the world, and we pray that God will bless and guide the life of both Communions in this work.

Anglican-Lutheran Commission Welcomes LWF Statement on Episcopal Ministry

Future Meetings to Include Strategies for Closer Cooperation in Diakonia

WHITE POINT, Nova Scotia, Canada/GENEVA, 4 June 2007 (LWI) – Representatives of the Lutheran World Federation (LWF) and the Anglican Communion attending the second meeting of the Third Anglican-Lutheran International Commission (ALIC - 3) welcomed the recent LWF statement on the episcopal ministry, and commended it for study in the context of Anglican-Lutheran dialogue.

The 14 to 20 May ALIC-3 meeting was held in Nova Scotia, Canada, hosted by the Anglican Communion in cooperation with Anglican Bishop Fred Hiltz of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

In a final communiqué, the Commission said it viewed the LWF's March 2007 Lund statement on "Episcopal Ministry within the Apostolicity of the Church" as a useful reference point for its own ongoing discussions on the ministry of episcopé. The LWF Council adopted the historic statement at its 20-27 March meeting in Lund, Sweden, which also commemorated the Federation's 60th anniversary. The English statement is available online at:

The Commission also had extensive discussions on the proposed draft for "An Anglican Covenant" and offered a response from the perspective of the document's potential impact on ecumenical relations between the two communions. The Commission encouraged the LWF to respond to the draft.

As a result of its deliberations on the ministry of diakonia, the Commission said it plans to include in its future meetings a block of time devoted to strategies that would help the Anglican and Lutheran churches work more closely together in common witness to address issues such as HIV and AIDS, as well as poverty.

The Commission members were welcomed by National Bishop Raymond Schultz of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada, and received a greeting from the Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, Archbishop Andrew Hutchison.

The LWF and the Anglican Consultative Council established ALIC - 3 to continue the dialogue between Anglicans and Lutherans on the worldwide level, which has been in progress since 1970. The first meeting of the current phase of the commission was held in January 2006 in Moshi, Tanzania, hosted by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Tanzania.

Canadian Anglican Bishop Fred Hiltz and Rev. Dr Thomas Nyiwe, president of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Cameroon co-chair ALIC-3.
